This highly detailed H. E. Leman Trade Rifle is a correct replica by the noted custom gun maker, Jack Brooks. Henry Leman often striped his maple stocks artificially with stain, which has been faithfully reproduced here.

H. E. Leman, Lancaster, Pennsylvania rifle plan.....#Plan-Leman

Neatly drawn and dimensioned, our full scale plan drawing will aid and simplify your assembly of a classic halfstock "trade rifle" in the style of Henry Eicholtz Leman. His famous gun shop in Lancaster, Pennsylvania made rifles for trade to westbound settlers, up and down the Ohio River, in Saint Louis, and all across the West.

Prized by the Indians, more percussion Leman rifles were used by the Indians, and surrendered to the U. S. Army, than any other cartridge or muzzle loading gun. Leman fullstock and halfstock rifles are highly collectible today.
