

Buffalo Powder Horn for your Hawken or Plains Rifle

A nice piece of folk art, our American Buffalo Powder Horn has a turned walnut finished butt plug, about 3-1/2" diameter. It may hold nearly a full pound of black powder, enough for 80 to 120 shots in a big bore Plains rifle.

The hand carved octagon neck tapers about 2", with a raised shoulder to retain your leather strap. The butt plug is hand turned to fit perfectly, with a patina finish to match the horn, and a staple for your leather strap. Antiqued (tarnished) solid brass tacks retain and decorate the perimeter of the butt plug.

Hand made, all surfaces are hand scraped and polished, exactly like the original. The stopper is hand carved, stained dark to match.

Entirely black, a buffalo horn has a different texture than a cow horn, and the hair strands are faintly visible in the surface. Buffalo horns always have a few small longitudinal craze marks in the surface, which add to the antique appearance, and which prove that they are real. These are classic Buffalo Powder Horns, hand made from genuine American Bison horns, in the U.S.A.

Real Buffalo Horns, raw, unfinished#Horn-Raw-Buff-M or L

Our raw American Bison horns are not scraped, sanded or buffed. Unlike Cow horns, all real Buffalo horns have a fibrous surface texture, longitudinal hair-like grain, small craze marks, and tiny imperfections that prove them to be genuine.

Large Buffalo horns are about 12" long, perhaps 3-1/2" diameter or larger.

Medium Buffalo horns are about 9" long, nearly 3" diameter, an ideal size.

French & Indian War Powder Horn

French & Indian War era Powder Horn, White or Antiqued:

Nice quality, this beautiful powder horn is finished in early 1750 to 1770 era styling. The creamy white horn is carved to reveal a dark waist, groove for strap, concave rings, and a tapered neck with carved flats.

The walnut butt plug is stained dark, fitted tight, retained by four tiny wooden pins. The decorative scalloped lip extends past the butt plug, drilled for our leather strap, which is included with this horn.

Hand made in the U.S.A., this early style powder horn, with extended lip, is a work of art. You can be proud to carry it. Personalize your horn with your name, primitive poetry, map, or folk-art scrimshaw engraving, exactly like an original horn. Choose white or antiqued patina finish.
